Fleurieu road duplication projects more than 70% complete

The duplication projects for Main South Road and Victor Harbor Road have hit some major mid-year milestones, and completion is in sight.

These projects include the duplication of Main South Road from Griffiths Drive, Seaford Rise to Port Road, Aldinga. There is also the duplication of Victor Harbor Road from Main South Road to just before the turn-off to McLaren Vale.

By late-July, the combined projects were more than 70% complete with 43,700 site hours logged.

As works have progressed on these major projects, motorists travelling through the areas have seen some exciting structures start to emerge.

These significant structures, which are now more than 70% complete include:

- the new Tatachilla overpass at the intersection of Maslin Beach Road and Main South Road;
- a new four-lane bridge for Pedler Creek, replacing the previous two-lane bridge;
- an underpass for large agricultural machinery at Branson Road and Thomas Road;
- the construction of a new surface bridge and start of an underpass at Port Road, Aldinga; and
- the construction of a new roundabout at the intersection of Robinson Road and Quarry Road on Victor Harbor Road.

Major project milestones

Pedler Creek bridge

Motorists travelling along Main South Road have had a great vantage point as the new Pedler Creek bridge has appeared before their eyes.

The latest milestone has been the careful installation of the super-t bridge beams. The team has achieved this with help from some huge cranes.

Tatachilla Overpass

What weighs as much as 50 cars? Your answer can be found on the Tatachilla overpass at the intersection of Main South Road and Tatachilla Road.

The huge support beams that were recently installed on the bridge are the heaviest that have been created in Adelaide for 15 years.

Port Road, Aldinga

Vehicles travelling along Main South Road, Aldinga have a change of traffic conditions.

The previous roundabout has been replaced by a bridge and an underpass is currently being constructed below.

Pedestrians and cyclists will also have safer journeys thanks to a new Shared Use Path (SUP) and footpath.

Victor Harbor Road

The completion of the duplication of Victor Harbor Road is on the horizon.

This project is now more than 70% complete and traffic will soon be travelling on the new roundabout at the intersection of Robinson Road and Quarry Road.

Environment

Plantings provide new butterfly habitat

Native plantings along the Victor Harbor Road and Main South Road Duplications will provide new habitat for an endangered butterfly species.

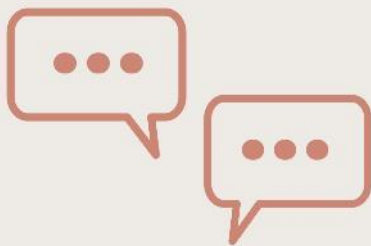

A total of 44 species, sourced from local seed, will be re-introduced, including Gahnia filum—a food source for the sedge skipper butterfly.

School engagement

Local students make cultural connections

Fleurieu school students had the opportunity to build their knowledge of Kaurna culture and leave a colourful and lasting mark on the Main South Road Duplication Stage 1 project.

Students from Port Noarlunga Primary School, Old Noarlunga Primary School, Seafood Rise Primary School and All Saints Primary School have designed and painted large cultural poles that will be installed at the rest nodes of the new Shared Use Path on Main South Road.
